

Enterprise Resource Planning

Our Approach

Every client is unique in their own way. Plato has always focused on understanding the needs of our clients, and we use this knowledge in conjunction with our own experience and expertise to provide the best consulting services possible. The goal is to serve the long-term needs of clients and to make their projects run as smoothly as possible. This commitment is part of the foundation that sets Plato apart, and it is that philosophy that ensures the continued success of our clients.

Experienced Service

The success of any project is dictated largely by the skills and experience of the consultants and available internal resources. Plato continually searches the marketplace to identify and secure those individuals that have excelled in their performance on other projects. Upon determining a client's particular requirements and challenges, we offer resources that closely match their needs and possess specific, relevant experience. We have many consultants with extensive ERP backgrounds. To ensure that the best available expertise is delivered to clients, Plato's team has solid prior experience as consultants and/or as internal administrators.

Plato's consulting rates are considered quite competitive by our clients, particularly compared to some of our larger competitors.

Within the realm of ERP solutions, Plato provides full service support for the implementation, upgrade, and application management of human resources, financial, and student administration applications. The consultants and management team include veterans in functional, technical, and project management consulting.

The Sustainable Advantage

Plato himself was a teacher- and so is Plato Consulting. Consultants are often used to augment an organization's internal resources in particular areas and to manage peak demands where internal resources are insufficient to undertake a particular assignment, such as an implementation, upgrade or functionality enhancement. Plato believes that a project is not complete until the client is taught self-sufficiency. Knowledge transfer is always paramount. The intention is not to keep clients captive, but rather to ensure that they are self-sufficient. In doing so, clients also learn to respect us and choose to call on Plato again when new requirements arise, thus building long-term mutual working relationships.
